"Timbuktab' is that rare film in which a Westerner ventures into another culture and actually illuminates it... Beautifully filmed, richly narrated, and genuinely moving"

—Banning Eyre, Afropop Worldwide, author of "In Griot Time"

"Few cross-cultural musical collaborations have been as pleasing and fruitful as Markus James's Timbuktab project... their music is a language whose grammar has been developing for centuries along the sandy banks of the Niger River and in the delta of the Mississippi River."

—Marco Werman, PRI/BBC's The World
